County Executive Bello, Mayor Warren Announce Latest Schedule for Community Based COVID-19 Vaccination Clinics in the City of Rochester

Rochester, NY – Monroe County Executive Adam Bello and Rochester Mayor Lovely Warren are pleased to announce the next round of community COVID-19 vaccination clinics in the four quadrants of the city of Rochester. The new schedule begins Thursday, June 17 and will offer Pfizer vaccine for anyone 12 years of age and older or the Johnson & Johnson vaccine for anyone 18 years and older.

“I want to thank all of the organizations and locations who have stepped up to help vaccinate Monroe County and ensure that there is equitable distribution of the COVID-19 vaccine,” said County Executive Bello. “It is critical that we use all means available to reach everyone across our community and provide access in the way that best meets their needs.”

“It is critical that we continue encouraging people to get vaccinated in every corner of our city,” said Mayor Warren. “Our community is becoming safer thanks to County Executive Bello and our many community partners who are providing these additional vaccination opportunities for city residents.”
